The New Republic, issue of July 4, offers a very interesting compilation of lucid statements from Nazi sources. I take the liberty of presenting a few of them here:

"The German has not the slightest notion how a people must be misled if the adherence of the masses is sought."

—Hitler, "Mein Kampf" (Deleted in the 12th ed. and all others published after 1932)

"It is the task of the Students' corporations to see that dueling takes the first place in the students' activities. It has under all circumstances to come before the club life and meetings."

Berliner Borsen Zeitung, Dec. 13, 1933

"Frenchmen are not human beings and must under no circumstances be dealt with as such. If a German nevertheless lowers himself to treat a Frenchman humanly, he is only doing it in order not to come down to the level of the French."

Pforzheimer Anzeiger, No. 244

"We are not and do not want to be the land of Goethe and Einstein. Not on any account."

Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger, May 7, 1933

"Our socialism, as we understand it, is one of the best legacies of Old Prussia. It is the legacy of the Prussian army, of Prussian officialdom. It is that kind of socialism which enabled Frederick the Great and his Grenadiers to carry on a war for seven years."

—Dr. Goebbels (Minister of Propaganda)

In the official National-Socialist organ of Mannheim, printed on Aug. 28, there appeared photographs of two "Jew wenches"—that is, German girls who had Jewish sweethearts—with this delightful caption underneath them:

"They will be amongst those who will be made sterile through the Sterilization act and will thus become valueless altogether. Let them perish in their disgrace. Nobody will care"

"Young Jewish gents are advised to satisfy their lust in future with the little Rebecas of their own race, otherwise the people may take a bitter revenge one day."

"We know where we began, but only God knows where we will one day end."

—Dr. Goebbels

These statements are all from official sources. They speak for themselves.

The national guard has been called out in connection with the strike. G. Logan Pain, publisher of the San Jose News, gives this as his very profound and admittedly worthy reason for shifting his support from Young to Merriam in the oncoming gubernatorial race.

Did Mr. Pain, perchance, see the charming photo and caption run by the Call-Bulletin recently? One can hardly doubt. The photo was a view of west San Francisco from one of the buildings on the

OPEN MONDAY

Mrs. Margaret Murdock, formerly connected with the San Jose State college home-making department, will open Drew's cafeteria next Monday, and will be prepared to serve over a hundred people twice daily.

After three years of complete idleness, the Drew corporation officials decided early in June to lease out the cafeteria concession to Mrs. Murdock again, and work of renovating the building began last week in anticipation of large crowds from the three canneries. Mrs. Murdock, it was announced, held the concession for eight consecutive years during the Ainsley ownership until it was closed in 1931.

The cafeteria will employ seven cannery workers during half the noon hour, with a similar arrangement planned for the evening meal, and Mrs. Murdock and her children, Mrs. Walker and Jack, will complete the staff.

Mrs. Murdock came here several weeks ago from Georgetown, near Placerville, where her husband is in the wood business, after a short stay in Sebastopol. She was employed as head cook in the meat and pastry departments of San Jose State college home-making staff, with which she was associated for several years.

Scout Troops Vie
For Fair Trophy

Sacramento, July 11—Boy Scout troops throughout the state will put up a keen fight for the annual state fair trophy awarded to the troop making the best and most varied exhibit.

Individual troop members are also busy preparing entries for the premiums offered for model bridges, knot boards, leather work and many other types of scouting activities.

waterfront; it was taken, rather picturesquely, over the top of a machine gun, behind which were posed three grim-faced militiamen. The caption read: "Safety on the Waterfront." Is Mr. Pain making his brave stand along with the Call-Bulletin? Is that his final answer to maritime and dock workers, held at bay by the unwillingness of their employers to sacrifice a mite that the workers may have their due?

If one could only be the national guard for a day!—with those genial vomit-bombs, and those splendid bayonets, and those lovable machine guns—Oh, to be the national guard for such a day, and to slink quietly away . . . and desert.

Joe Furtado Routs
Visiting Firemen

A series of altercations between Joe Furtado, Campbell youth, and two unknown men from Porterville resulted in a stalemate Friday when one of the strangers drew a knife on Furtado, and then beat a hurried retreat with his companion.

According to witnesses, the trouble began early in the afternoon in a local establishment, where the Porterville men were said to have made themselves conspicuously obnoxious to several women. Their actions went unchallenged for some time, as both men had obviously been drinking heavily, but finally they became so offensive Joe Furtado approached and asked that they leave the place immediately. After some bickering the men complied, only to return again about an hour later and repeat their offenses with insulting bravura. Furtado then took the men strongly to task, the result being that one of them challenged him "to step outside."

Meantime a considerable crowd gathered, congesting traffic of the business section for several blocks. The two men proceeded to the alley next to Field's store, where suddenly the Porterville man drew a knife and threatened. Field interposed, requesting the men to settle their difference elsewhere. Both agreed, but when they removed to a new location, the stranger, flashing a long-bladed pocket knife, beat a hurried retreat with his friend.

Who the men were remained a mystery, as none of the town people knew them. Comments in many quarters were difficult to obtain, and opinion seemed generally to favor stifling the news.

Miriam Blaine
Gets Position In Saratoga School

Miss Miriam Blaine, who was engaged as a part-time teacher at the Saratoga grammar school during the past year, was named recently by the board of trustees as a regular fourth and fifth grade teacher in that school.

The announcement followed receipt of a resignation slip from Mrs. Meredith Rowell Perkins, formerly employed in that capacity. Mrs. Perkins was married during the past year, and proffered her resignation in order to move to San Francisco, where she will reside with her husband.

Mrs. Herold Morton, with her two sons, Richard and Wilbur, and Horace Person, have been vacationing at Capitola during the past week, where the Morton's have a summer cottage. Mrs. Morton and her two sons returned recently from an extensive trip in the north which included Crater Lake, Vancouver, and Victoria.

HANDLE H. TODD'S
CAMPAIGN HERE

San Francisco, July 11—Announcement was made today by former Postmaster Harry L. Todd, candidate for the Republican nomination for the state board of equalization for the first district, of the executive committee in charge of his campaign.

John L. McNab is chairman of the committee which is composed of the following additional members: Charles Albert Adams, Mrs. L. P. Boyce, Andrew Burke, Judge George E. Crothers, Alexander Duffer, Arthur M. Free, Mrs. Emma Grondona, Fred R. Howe, Mrs. Edward H. Hurlbut, Lester Johnson, Charles G. Lambert, Tracy Learnard, Mrs. Hulda McGinn, Mrs. Sadie A. Plank, Albert A. Rosenshine, Howard C. Rowley, Frank C. Ruppel, Harry D. Saville, Oliver P. Stidger, Peter tum Suden, Walter A. Weber, John Whicher.

In charge of the seven counties comprising the district are Harry D. Saville, San Francisco; Mayor Charles G. Lambert of Redwood City, San Mateo county; former Congressman Arthur M. Free of San Jose, Santa Clara county; Fred R. Howe of Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz, San Benito, Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties.

Todd begins today a week's tour of the southern counties of the district, following which announcement will be made of his complete campaign organization by counties.

ARRESTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Harry White, proprietor of the Busy Bee restaurant, was arrested Friday afternoon on charges of violation of the state liquor law by deputies from the sheriff's office working in conjunction with Constable Frank Coupland and local representatives of the state board of equalization.

Taken to the county jail, White was released several hours later upon posting bail to the amount of $500.

He appeared before Justice John D. Blaine last Saturday, at which time the hearing was postponed until the latter part of the week.

I.O.O.F. Installs

G.; Mrs. Jessie Silberbauer, R.S.V.G.; Mrs. June Rice, L.S.V.G.; Mrs. Catherine Jones, warden; Mrs. Beulah Covey, conductor; Miss Sadie Rice, inside guardian; Walter Smily, outside guardian; Mrs. Elfrieda Anderson, chaplain; Miss Catherine Gullick, musician.

Renovation In Grammar School

A large portion of the renovation work in the Campbell grammar school was expected to be completed today.

Work of paving the inner-court of the building with asphaltic concrete, which was begun last Friday, was definitely to be finished up today, according to A. J. Raisch, contractor in charge of the job. The surface will now be covered with two inches of asphalt, graded so as to facilitate drainage, and will not be slippery even when wet.

At the same time, most of the new window shades will have been hung by the regular staff of custodians under Antone Ferro. There were nearly 500 shades requiring such replacement.

Further work in progress is the scrubbing, sterilization, sanding, and waxing of the floors in all the classrooms, and the sanding and waxing of the floors in the school assembly hall.

Congresswoman
Kahn Is Friend
Of Agriculture

"Representing a city district there has been no better friend of agriculture in Congress than Mrs. Florence P. Kahn," said T. C. Tucker, chairman of the Growers' Tariff league and manager of the California Almond growers exchange today in commenting on the record of the San Francisco representative.

Continuing, the statement declared, "Of course this fact is just another indication of Mrs. Kahn's ability and good sense. She of course represents her district in this city, but she knows that the people she serves cannot thrive if agriculture is depressed, so she supports measures designed to improve the condition of the California farmer."

ON THE PAGEDAM

Work on the Page dam, one mile above Campbell on the Los Gatos creek, was completed last Tuesday, according to the announcement of G. W. Hunt, resident engineer, and there now remains but the small task of painting the steel construction work.

The dam was built for the purpose of impounding and diverting the water from the creek so that farmers in this vicinity would be able to furnish their parched acres with an ample supply of water. The new structure replaces a crude original designed and constructed by the Page brothers in 1902, which was constructed of wood, and which, as a result of extreme deterioration, was easily victimized by the flood of 1927.

Between abutments rising up impressively from the creek bed, the new dam has a spillway 200 feet long built in three sections, and the water is conducted over this to three large headgates, which may be raised or lowered accordingly as need dictates. From these headgates the water is led into the Page ditch, a portion of which will be revised and improved in the near future.

A bronze plaque on the dam reveals that the directors of the water conservation district of which the Page dam is a part, includes the following men: Reginald L. Perry, S. D. Farrington, William F. Noethig, R. P. Van Orden, J. Fred Holthouse, Ralph F. Simons, and C. D. Cavalaro. Leroy Anderson is secretary of the body; Herbert C. Jones, attorney; Fred H. Tibbets, chief engineer; G. W. Hunt, field engineer, and George W. Page, construction superintendent. The dam was built by the Santa Clara Valley Water conservation district with the support of CWA.

According to Hunt, the work took extraordinarily long for the reason that the staff in charge employed as little machinery as possible in order to give work to as many men as seemed advisable.

While connected with the widespread building operations of the water conservation district, this project was completely independent of the bond issue which was recently passed upon so enthusiastically by the district.

California congresswoman battled against the policy of subjecting California's rich specialty crops to the grave risk of being traded off through reciprocal trade agreements.

"Agriculture for the whole of California desires to claim Mrs. Kahn as its congresswoman and the voters of her district will aid in restoring prosperity to themselves as well as to the farmers of the state by re-electing her."

California state government is "broke" but not bankrupt!

Paradoxical though this may seem at first glance, it is a fairly accurate description of the state's condition.

Hard-pressed for actual cash, with an imperative need of repairing its financial structure as soon as possible, California nonetheless has escaped the shutdown of its public school system, has averted a tax strike and has one of the healthiest credit ratings of any of the states in the Union.

California municipal and district securities, for the most part, are in a preferred position in the world's money markets.

Such is the sunny side of California's financial dilemma. Comparatively—and most financial problems must be judged comparatively during a period of depression—California is in an unusually solvent condition, despite a $31,000,000 deficit and an excess of expenditures over income.

The major factor contributing to California's comparative soundness in tax and financial affairs has been the relief accorded to common property taxpayers this year under the Riley-Stewart tax relief plan, which relieved local taxpayers of some $80,000,000 in school costs. With all tax structures basically dependent on "ability to pay," it is probable that California would have witnessed serious tax strikes and school "holidays" if the overburdened common property taxpayer had not been granted relief.

And property today, even with the relief made possible under the Riley-Stewart plan, is still paying more than 60 per cent of the total cost of government, a factor which should be carefully weighed when new tax proposals are considered to balance the state budget.

Together with its advantages, however, the Riley-Stewart plan, when it becomes fully operative next year with the return of public utility property to local tax rolls, will present new problems.

The state deficit for example, will suddenly soar from $31,000,000 to approximately $96,000,000 when the state loses its regular $65,000,000 in gross receipts taxes from the utilities by yielding the utility properties to the county tax rolls. Local taxpayers, to be sure, will benefit by a second reduction in their tax bills due to the broadening of the local tax base and the placing of utility property on a tax equality with general property.

But the state, having played the good Samaritan and extended the helping hand to local government, must find new sources of revenue to offset the $65,000,000.

The salutary phase of the whole situation is that California, unlike many other states, has at least taken the first step toward correcting tax inequalities and injustices which had penalized the common property owner and which threatened to destroy property values.

The problem now confronting the state is to complete the job of putting its house in order. If California measures up to the task by effecting a balance between income and outgo and placing state finance on a sound and equitable basis, the state will undoubtedly retain its enviable financial rating. But if it fails in finding the solution—permitting a continuance of the present disparity between costs and revenues and allowing the state deficit to increase—actual bankruptcy of state government may very well ensue.

Built in EARNING POWER

HERE'S GOOD NEWS if you thought you couldn't afford an electric refrigerator. Several leading manufacturers have built a brand new FARM refrigerator. It has all the important features of the University of California design, plus many new improvements. We promise that it surpasses anything you have ever seen before.

The Farm "25"—smallest of the new models, is pictured above. Here is an ideal size for the average farm. Ruggedly constructed for a lifetime of heavy-duty service, it is nevertheless extremely inexpensive. And it may be operated for as little as 5c a day.

The Farm "25," however, is only one of the new models. Others are available up to 125 cubic feet capacity. Or if you are handy with tools, you can even build one yourself—we will supply the plans. The important thing is to get an electric refrigerator on the job at once. California winters are no protection against food-spoilage and the losses in summer are tremendous.

Am. Trust Co. To Establish Branch In Sacramento

Expansion of American Trust company into Sacramento within the next few weeks was announced lately by Fred T. Elsey, president of the bank.

Decision of the American Trust company to establish an office in the key city of the Sacramento valley is significant because it marks the first important branch expansion to be initiated by this bank in more than five years.

Permission to establish the new branch has been concurred in by the Federal Reserve board, the comptroller of the currency and by the superintendent of banks for the state of California.

Mr. Elsey's statement announcing the new office was as follows:

"American Trust company has long felt the need of an office in Sacramento to round out its system of branches in the many closely inter-related sections of Northern and Central California, to afford more convenient service to its many customers in the Sacramento valley and facilities for transacting the Sacramento valley business of our customers at other points.

Accordingly, we have applied for permission to establish such a branch and this permission has been concurred in by the Federal Reserve board, the comptroller of the currency and the superintendent of banks for the state of California.

"The Sacramento branch will be opened as soon as suitable quarters are secured, and will afford complete banking facilities for handling savings, commercial and trust business.

"It is a coincidence that American Trust company will enter the historic state capital during its own 80th anniversary year. It does so with a desire to afford a service worthy of one of the state's most stable and important centers, and in keeping with Sacramento's other commendable banking institutions."

American Trust company has 90 branches concentrated in Northern and Central California. Its resources total 225 million dollars and its deposits approximately 200 million.

Tomatoes Plus

TOMATOES are very good eating as just plain tomatoes, but add the flavor of another good food to them and you have their delicious taste together with another succulent flavor—in other words, tomatoes plus. Take peas for instance. They are nearly as popular as tomatoes. Why not enjoy the tastes of these two vegetables together in such dishes as the following:

Tomato and Pea Cutlets: Combine one cup of drained canned peas, one half cup very thick white sauce and two slightly-beaten egg yolks. Drop by spoonfuls into a hot, buttered skillet, and fry brown, turning over once. Dip eight slices of ripe tomato in flour, and sprinkle them with salt and pepper. Sauté in fat in which cutlets cooked. Serve a cutlet on each slice of tomato. Serves eight.

Peas with French Tomatoes: Cut three or four not-too-soft tomatoes in pieces, and sauté gently in three tablespoons butter until soft. Season well with salt and pepper, and add the drained contents of a No. 2 can of peas. Heat and serve. Serves eight.

With Onions and Celery

Baked Tomatoes and Onion: Put the contents of one large can of tomatoes, one cup sliced onions, two teaspoons salt and one-fourth teaspoon pepper in a pan, cover, and cook for two and a half hours at 275 degrees, or for two hours at 300 degrees. Add two tablespoons butter when done. This is a good dish to serve with an oven-cooked meal.

Stewed Tomatoes and Celery: Combine the contents of a No. 2 can tomatoes, one-half cup diced, cooked celery, salt, pepper, one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon sugar, and simmer gently for a few minutes. Serves four.

FAIR WILL SHOW HOUSEWIVES NEW COOKING TRICKS

Sacramento, July 11—Blushing brides and seasoned housewives alike who attend the 1934 California state fair will return to their homes with a rich harvest of new ideas for improving the family's three square meals a day.

A series of daily cooking schools, dealing in new tricks for preparing the average family's menu and specializing in products used in California kitchens, will be among the new state fair features.

The cooking schools will be part of the food and home appliance exposition which will open in the main floor of the grandstand building on September 1 and continue through the ten days of the fair.

The cooking instruction will be given by a corps of specially selected home economists and dieticians.

While cakes are baking and waffles browning, radio entertainers will provide a daily

• Wedding Breakfast Menus

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

THOUGH A great deal of attention is rightfully lavished on the wedding ceremony, the wedding breakfast, too, should come in for its fair share of importance. This first meal should set a standard for endless future pleasant breakfasts. After a midday wedding, the invited guests assemble for a simple three or four course "breakfast" at the bride's home or a nearby club or hotel. With a small group it is gay and friendly for all to sit around one table where everyone may watch the bride cut her wedding cake and share the risk of finding a ring, coin, thimble or button in his piece. The wedding table should be set with dignified simplicity. A lace or white damask cloth, choice china, clear crystal and gleaming silver blend pleasantly with wedding colors. Accented by a wreath of soft ferns or other delicate greenery, the white wedding cake is centerpiece enough. For pretty individual favors, place above each service plate a small white box bearing the initials of the bride and groom and tied with a fluffy white ribbon. Each guest who puts a piece of the cake in this box to sleep on will have prophetic dreams. Most important, though, is the quality of the wedding breakfast that starts the young couple on their way. The menus and recipes for this important occasion must be of memorable quality such as these suggested below.

Rice Flakes Muffins—Sift together 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 3 tablespoons sugar. Then add 1 cup Rice Flakes which have been crushed with rolling pin. Add ½ cup milk to 1 beaten egg and mix with fork into dry ingredients. Add 2 tablespoons melted butter and bake for 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven (400 to 425° F.) in well buttered muffin tins. This recipe makes 8 large muffins.

Creamed Sweetbreads and Mushrooms in Bread Patties—Soak 2 sweetbreads in cold water for one hour, changing the water several times. Drain and plunge into boiling water to which 1 tablespoon Pure Vinegar has been added, and cook for 15 minutes. Drain and place immediately into ice water to blanch. Allow to stand for 10 minutes, then drain and chill. Cut in dice and add to the following sauce: Melt 1 tablespoon butter and blend with 4 tablespoons flour. Add 2 cups rich milk or thin cream, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and ½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and the flour thoroughly cooked. Serve in bread patties and garnish attractively with slices of Stuffed Spanish Olives.

Bread Patties—Cut 1 loaf stale bread into 6 slices, about 2 inches thick. Trim the crusts, cut in squares and hollow out the centers leaving bread cases or patties in which to serve the Creamed Sweetbreads and Mushrooms. Brush the patties slightly with melted butter and toast until delicately brown in a hot oven.

Cheese Dressing—Mash 1 small package soft cream cheese and add 1 cup well seasoned French Dressing, a little at a time, mixing thoroughly after each addition.

M. GARDNER IS FINED $20

Merle Gardner of Campbell was released from custody Friday upon pleading guilty to a charge of petty theft before Judge A. H. Bell of Los Gatos. He was fined $20.

The charges were preferred against Gardner by William Murphy who adduced personal checks of $100 and $50 which he had signed over to Gardner in April of this year. Murphy declared the money had been given in good faith, and that Gardner had deliberately misappropriated the funds.

Gardner was taken into custody on June 21, and released under bail to the amount of $150, which Judge Bell returned to him after the fine had been deducted. It was understood that Gardner had arranged privately to satisfy Murphy to the full amount of the checks.

Campbell People Hear Townsend

With approximately thirty Campbell people in attendance, a large crowd, estimated at about 6,000, heard Dr. F. E. Townsend in his discussion of the "old age revolving pension" plan, of which he is the originator, at a picnic held in Alum Rock Park last Sunday.

Dr. Townsend reported notable gains for his plan, adducing that 3,000,000 people in 32 widely scattered states had signed petitions to be presented to various congressional representatives. Capt. Brun-

Nancy Abinante of San Jose was a visitor in Campbell Tuesday.

Better Breakfasts

HERE'S a better breakfast with a "kick." It starts with a cocktail, but not of the kind that is "a hair of the dog that bit me last night." The cocktail is a delicious combination of strawberries, now in season, sugar, and pineapple juice, and it is followed by cereal with cream, a puffy cheese omelet, dressed cucumbers, wholewheat toast, and steaming coffee. If that's not enough to make anyone leap out of bed with alacrity, we miss our guess.

And here's the way to make that delectable breakfast cocktail. Wash and hull one pint box of strawberries, and cut them in halves. Pile in eight glass dessert dishes, sprinkle with one-fourth cup sugar, and let stand in the refrigerator until the rest of the breakfast is ready. Then pour over a chilled syrup made the night before by boiling together for a few minutes the contents of one No. 2 can of pineapple juice, one-fourth cup water and one-fourth cup sugar. This recipe will serve eight if everyone can be restrained from reaching for a second glass.

Fresh Coffee Essential

To make this breakfast perfect it is incumbent on you to serve perfectly fresh coffee. There's a secret to that which is not hard to solve. It consists merely of making your coffee with one of the brands that is vacuum packed—whichever one you prefer. For vacuum packed coffee is the only coffee that always remains strictly fresh until the moment you open the can.

KIWANIS NOTES

By Heck

Roscoe D. Wyatt, who made Santa Clara valley famous as the "valley of heart's delight" delivered a stimulating address on early California history yesterday at the Kiwanis Club, and was enthusiastically received.

Going back into the obscure past of California history, the speaker told the thrilling story of Spanish conquest, settlement, and early civilization, declaring that "too little emphasis has been placed upon this important phase of California development." With broad, easy strokes he traced that picturesque Spanish background, took note of the hopes and visions of the men who pioneered, of De Sota and Di Anza, and of the missionary fathers. He revealed the extensive plans of these men, their dream of a promenade which should stretch from San Francisco to Santa Cruz, and told of startling maps and prospects which had been discovered by scholars showing the great selfless ambitions of the fathers.

So little is known of that history, he declared that there is an amazing number of obscure missions in California which are rapidly going to pot, while others, more conveniently located and widely famed, but far younger in years, are being cherished as alone of historic value.

Mr. Wyatt will be remembered as the man who publicized Santa Clara valley as the "valley of heart's delight" to some 31,000,000 in widely scattered parts of the world. The name was suggested to him by a globe-trotter while he was secretary of the San Jose Chamber of Commerce some fifteen years ago. Recognizing its brilliance and aptness, he induced a friend to write a poem under that title, and with the poem, and a wealth of characteristic pictures, he proceeded to pass on to others word of the spell of the lovely, hidden valley.
